

ABSTRACT

A method, data structure, and system for storing memory card usage information on a memory card, the method comprising the steps of: collecting information about usage; recording the information about usage in an area of the memory card; and accessing the information about usage.